In the 5.5 km of the trail we will cross sugar cane crops, with their traditional “trapiches”, and then enter a cloud forest, with trees covered with orchids, lichens and mosses. The counselors of the Community Association will accompany us to explain both the ecosystem that surrounds us and the history of their community and the falls.

DAY 3 GOCTA ANDES LODGE – KUELAP – GOCTA ANDES LODGE

(Meal Plan: Breakfast, boxed Lunch and dinner)

8:00am Full day Kuelap. It is the most important archaeological site in the North American Andes. It forms an architectural stone complex characterized by its monumentality, with a large artificial platform, seated on the crest of rock on the top of Cerro Barreta (3000 msnm). The platform extends along almost 600 m and has a perimeter wall that in some points reaches 19 m high. It is estimated that its construction should have begun towards the sixth century, coinciding with the period of flowering of the Chachapoyas culture, and its occupation should have culminated towards the middle of the sixteenth century.

Its colossal walls and its complex interior architecture are evidence of its function as a well-organized population set, which includes administrative, religious, ceremonial and permanent residence enclosures.

Operativity: Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only at 8:00am
Duration: 8 hours
